State pension fund overcomes hurdles to secure fiscal-year gain

By Dave Segal

In a fiscal year fraught with geopolitical unrest, supply-chain issues, rising inflation and a bearish stock market, the state's largest public pension fund capitalized on its risk-averse strategy to finish in positive territory.

The Hawaii Employees' Retirement System pension fund posted an investment return of 3.7% for the year that ended June 30 to boost its total assets to a near-record $22 billion, according to a report presented Monday to ERS trustees by investment adviser Meketa Investment Group.
